Subject: Re: Distribution of Image Analyzer
From: Michael Vinther <mv@logicnet.dk> Date: 6/26/2018 6:50 AM To: Teknowledgist <teknowledgist@gmail.com>

Hi Eric
You are welcome to do that.
Best regards,
Michael

tir. 26. jun. 2018 03.42 skrev Teknowledgist <teknowledgist@gmail.com <mailto:teknowledgist@gmail.com>>:

    Michael,

    I am specifically including your full name, Michael Vinther, to try to squeeze past spam filtering.

    Hi. I am interested in making a Chocolatey (https://chocolatey.org) package for Image Analyzer, and I am wondering if you would be willing to give your consent to distribute the unaltered installation executable within the Chocolatey package on the public repository.

    Many Chocolatey packages download a software installer from the download source, but FossHub (your download host) has asked that Chocolatey not download from their site. If the software license allows or there is express consent, Chocolatey packages can have the binaries "embedded" as a alternative method of distribution and installation.

    Thanks,
    Erich Hammer